LIVEBOARD · QUINO DEL MAR

Revillagigedo Archipelago

The Revillagigedo Archipelago, better known as the Socorro Islands, is a group of four volcanic islands about 250 miles south of Cabo San Lucas, a UNESCO World Heritage Site that can only be reached by liveboard. Its isolation in the open Pacific attracts the big pelagics: oceanic mantas that seek out interaction with divers, schooling hammerhead sharks, silky and Galapagos sharks, and playful dolphins.

RING IN THE NEW YEAR 2028 IN REVILLAGIGEDO!

We celebrate New Year's Eve on board, between dives with oceanic mantas and sharks.

BEFORE YOU GO

Get ready for your expedition

Airport

Arrival and departure via Los Cabos International Airport (SJD), with direct flights from the US, Canada and Mexico. Boarding is on December 28 at 5 pm and disembarkation on January 6 at 8:30 am.

Dive conditions

Open ocean with possible currents and swell, walls and rocky formations. Average depth of 20 to 30 m and all dives from pangas. Nitrox is highly recommended.

Water temperature

December: 25–26 °C. January: 22–24 °C. We recommend a 5 to 7 mm wetsuit.

Currency

Mexican peso (MXN), but US dollars are easily accepted. Visa and Mastercard are widely accepted.

Electricity

Mexico uses type A and B plugs (127 V / 60 Hz). On board there is 110 V with US-style outlets. Bring an adapter if you have a stopover in another country.

Park fee

MXN 3,760 per day in the park (approx. USD 1,350 for the 6 days, depending on the exchange rate). Due one month before departure. Exemptions: retirees 100%, teachers and students 75%, Mexican nationals and residents 50%, with documents sent one month in advance.

Park rules

Knives, flashlights and night dives are prohibited. Lights mounted on cameras are allowed.

Nitrox

Nitrox for the whole trip: USD 140. PADI Nitrox course on board: USD 200, subject to instructor availability.

Documents

Many nationalities do not need a visa to enter Mexico as tourists. Please check the requirements for your passport; we will let you know of any changes.
